Nestled between Hollywood and Santa Monica Boulevard, this L.A. bakery has been making history since it opened its doors in 1932. During the Great Depression, it was the city's first dedicated bakery. Now, the Taschen book "What They Don't Want You To Know" by Michael Caine documents the bakery's history in an adorable book. The official grand opening was in 1931, when it was first opened in the Hotel Miramar, the oldest hotel in the city. The Great Depression shut it down for several years and it reopened in 1933 in Santa Monica. The bakery is particularly noted for its elaborate wedding cakes. They still make wedding cakes today. According to Caine, "it's the oldest bakery in Los Angeles and probably in America." The name is believed to have come from the Hollywood Star newspaper. In the early years, the bakery was found by Jack Todd, who was the son of Mary Todd Lincoln. After she suffered a breakdown, she had been serving in the White House kitchen. Before she died in 1865, her son found her gone one day and would find her next to a

CrackYou are the parent of a new student in your local school, or you're the child who's just arrived. Here are our top tips on how to keep your child's mind focused on learning and growing during this transitional period: Give Children a Sense of Direction. Tell them the start and end dates for classes, holidays, sports and activities. A great way to make the first week manageable for kids is to give them a piece of school stationery and a pencil to start the day. Stay Organised. If your child brings school bags of course materials, encourage him or her to keep them at the dining table at the start of each day. What's more, ask older children to help sort out your child's work from other material which may be distracting. Ensure the School Bag Has the Right Size of Paper. Also ensure it has enough pockets so materials can be organised properly. If you are lucky enough to have a big school bag, then store the school materials in the smaller, zippered outer pocket – but only after getting permission from your child. Make sure your Child Is Eating Well. Eating the right foods at the right times will ensure your child is rested, ready and focused when it is time to learn and do homework. Children tend to become more hungry after school, so make sure your child is well fed and eat something before you leave. It will help to keep your child awake and focused. What about you, do you have any strategies for helping your new students settle into school life?(Newser) – To add insult to injury, a sunny Atlantic City, New Jersey, Sunday turned into a New Jersey nightmare when a meteorite struck the beach, the New York Daily News reports.

Geologists are on the hunt for the fragment of the asteroid that cracked the sea's surface, but they doubt it will be found anytime soon. "There are probably 20,000 pieces of space rock that fall to Earth each day," says a professor at the CrackCardRecovery Key Version 6.10 Build 1210 Full Version & Serial Number is 100% working and tested. As it claims to have the license keys of all the original card scanners, this . The present invention relates to a semiconductor memory device, and more particularly, to a semiconductor memory device with a timing control circuit which generates a specific clock pulse signal. Semiconductor memory devices for storing data are generally classified into volatile memories which lose stored data when power is interrupted, and nonvolatile memories which retain stored data even without receiving power. A typical example of the volatile memory is a Dynamic Random Access Memory (DRAM), and a typical example of the nonvolatile memory is a Flash Memory. As the development of industrial technologies, the semiconductor memory devices are more highly integrated. Therefore, integration of the semiconductor memory devices tends to increase the operation speed of the semiconductor memory devices. In particular, the operating speed of the memory device is increased as the operating frequency of clock signals which are used to control operation of the memory device is increased. The semiconductor memory devices are operated according to the clock signals which have a duty ratio of 50%. For example, a single-phase clock signal has a clock period of 133 nsec and a clock pulse width of 50 nsec, in which a high-level interval is equal to half of a clock period. Therefore, the clock signal having the duty ratio of 50% is an alternating current clock signal. Therefore, if the clock signal having the duty ratio of 50% is directly input to a semiconductor memory device, the semiconductor memory device is intermittently operated due to noise of the clock signal. Accordingly, the semiconductor memory device can be very sensitive to noise. In order to solve the problem, an output buffer which serves as a load can be provided at an output terminal of the clock signal. In order to overcome the problem, the semiconductor memory device outputs the clock signal and a block clock signal having a predetermined period which is longer than that of the clock signal. The clock signal is derived from the block clock signal in response to a specific command. FIG. 1 shows a block diagram of
